

Weird Science - Hair We Go

The Sunday Times - Jan. 7, 2007

Helena Frith Powell

Hair We Go

Here's one for the fellas. The Teeter Hang Ups Inversion Table is for baldies. The good news? There is a cure for baldness that doesn't involve stitches or skin grafts. The bad news?

You are strapped to a metal contraption, not dissimilar to a sophisticated torture instrument, and hung upside down. The Teeter Table is the latest in anti-ageing technology, the idea being that the blood flows to your scalp, stimulating hair follicles. Inversions are also thought to help maintain mental awareness and healthy organs, and to reduce varicose veins. According to a nurse at HB Health, a private clinic that does sessions, you need several visits to get the full effects. The clinic offers free treatments for existing clients.

HB Health; 020 7838 0765

www.hbhealth.com